

Trimble Confirmed as a Sponsor of GIM International Summit

The organising committee of the GIM International Summit is delighted to announce that Trimble has been confirmed as a main sponsor. "Trimble has nearly 40 years of experience and is one of the most recognised companies in the geomatics industry – offering many innovative solutions for a broad spectrum of applications – so we are naturally proud to have this sponsor on board," said Durk Haarsma, publishing director of GIM International which is organising the event.

The GIM International Summit will be held on 10-12 February in Amsterdam, The Netherlands. Based on the concept of 'inside looking out', thought leaders and opinion-makers from not only inside but also outside the field of geomatics will gather in Amsterdam to explore how they believe the industry should develop. Trimble will also contribute to the technical programme by providing attendees with insight into the company's very latest technology.
