

3D Laser Mapping Expands to Australia

3D Laser Mapping, UK, has announced a new operation in Australia. The new office in Perth will be headed by Iain Bramwell acting as general manager and will provide local sales support and service for the whole of the Asia Pacific region.

Dr Graham Hunter, managing director of UK based 3D Laser Mapping, says the company is already very active in this region and has developed a good reputation and customer base through a network of local distributors. The new office will enable 3D Laser Mapping to provide frontline support and service for both existing and potential clients, maximising the potential of the region.

Iain Bramwell of 3D Laser Mapping International Pty Ltd adds that the company has already completed a number of projects in the region, including StreetMapper surveys for highway and rail infrastructure projects, and he is also actively working with many of the region's leading mining operators.
