AAG Call for Papers

The Association of American Geographers has issued an invitation to join the Annual Meeting, to be held from 24th to 28th February 2012 in New York, USA, to learn the latest in research, policy, and scientific applications.

Amongst the topics are human rights and Social Justice; political geography; natural hazards; cartography; geography education; climate change; human geography; giscience & technologies; physical geography; planning & international development.

The AAG Annual Meeting is an interdisciplinary forum open to anyone with an interest in geography and related disciplines. All scholars, researchers, and students are welcome to submit abstracts for papers. The 2012 AAG Annual Meeting will be held much earlier than previous meetings; therefore, presenters will need to submit their abstracts and proposals earlier. To register for the meeting and submit an abstract, visit the website. The Call for Papers will end on 28th September 2011.

The week-long conference is expected to host more than 7,000 geographers from more than 60 countries and feature over 4,000 scientific presentations, posters, workshops, and field trips by leading scholars and researchers. Sessions will be organized around topics and special themes such as GIScience and technologies, cartography, political geography, natural hazards, geography education, climate change, human geography, physical geography, planning and international development, and social justice.
