Golden Software Blog

Golden Software has launched the Golden Software Blog which is a resource for technical tips, answers to frequently asked questions, and announcements. The blog will have tagged keywords to facilitate keyword searching and querying, making it easy for users to find topics in which they are interested.

Users can subscribe to the blog directly on the Golden Software website, or via several social media sources such as Google reader, My Yahoo, Windows Live, and others to automatically receive the blog feed. Users will have to opportunity to register with the blog so that users can log in and leave comments for the blog posts, enriching the sense of community for the users.

https://www.gim-international.com/content/news/golden-software-blog