

Intermat Displays Remote Controlled Construction Equipment

Intermat in Paris (France) took place from 20 to 25 April 2009. This construction trade show had dedicated a great surface to building material and remote control of the vehicles. However this was impressive - and the huge number of visitors confirmed this - the GPS mainly was used for controlling machines, rather than surveying.

Some 'big names' were on the show, like Trimble and Sokkia/Topcon. Other brands were represented by dealers. For an impression, please have a look at the pictures.
