

Municipalities Software Subscription

Bentley Systems (PA, USA) announced its software subscription for municipalities. Called the Municipal License Subscription (MLS) program, it offers municipalities all the mapping and engineering software for a fixed annual fee, based on population.

Often, because of budget constraints, municipalities have an incomplete or unintegrated set of software tools to map and engineer their infrastructure - an essential function for these governments. With the MLS, they can slash their software and administrative costs, outfit their entire mapping and engineering organisations with fully integrated software, and realise a more efficient government.

The MLS portfolio includes integrated geospatial and engineering solutions for: surveying, site and terrain modelling; land management; mapping, imaging and document conversion; road and highway design, rail and transit system design; water and wastewater management; architecture and facilities management; communications network design; plant design and operation, and urban visualisation, web publishing, etc.

<https://www.gim-international.com/content/news/municipalities-software-subscription>
