

SDI Conference

The international conference on spatial data infrastructures 2010 will be held from 15th to 17th September 2010 hosted by FON University in Skopje, Republic of Macedonia. The main theme of the Conference is the development and use of Spatial Data Infrastructures (SDI's) and all their aspects.

The ambition of the conference is to become the major SDI conference in the region of South-East Europe and be influential here for SDI development. The conference will show the importance of SDIs and their use, on local, national or regional level in South East Europe and its relation to global initiatives. The realisation of the European INSPIRE directive in the region is expected to be an important part of the conference.
